EXPERIENCE IS EVERYTHING, OPEN MEDIA FOUNDATION HOSTS INTERN INFO-SESSION AND TOUR

(DENVER, CO) FEBRUARY 18 2015, The Open Media Foundation (OMF), a Denver nonprofit working to ensure community engagement in media, will be hosting an intern info-session and tour on February 18th at 5:30PM. Attendants will learn about the open intern positions with the organization and the success stories of past participants in the program.

“At the Open Media Foundation, all the Services, Training, and Tools we offer to nonprofits and individuals depend on the work of our talented interns,” said Tony Shawcross, Executive Director of OMF. “Time and time again, we hear that the experience the interns gain here is invaluable and prepares them for success in a wide range of communications-related careers,” added Shawcross.

One of these success stories is Shannon Mullane. From her real world experience offered by an internship at OMF and it’s subsidiary Denver Open Media (DOM), she was able to successfully pursue her professional goals in Colorado and abroad. “DOM has been a great experience. I’ve worked with high-quality equipment that I’ve never had access to before, and I’ve been able to take advantage of the DOM classes. These classes are an amazing resource, and I feel like I’m already gaining software, equipment, field and studio skills that will be useful in the future!”

OMF offers a variety of department positions for interns including from fundraising and development to state capitol production.
